Last Saturday night, I watched a movie "The Witches" with mum and dad at Mega Box. This movie is based on the book "The Witches" written by the renowned children's writer Roald Dahl.

We got there at seven fifty and the movie started at eight. I was excited when I sat opposite the huge screen even though this was not my first time watching a movie at a cinema.

The story was about an orphaned young boy who went to live with his grandma after his parents got killed in a car accident. One day, when grandma took the boy to a grocery store to get something, the boy met a strange lady there. Back at home, the boy told grandma about the encounter. Frantically, grandma took the boy to flee to a hotel the next day. Grandma explained to him that the lady he met at the grocery store was a witch. And witches were all very evil and that was why they needed to get away.

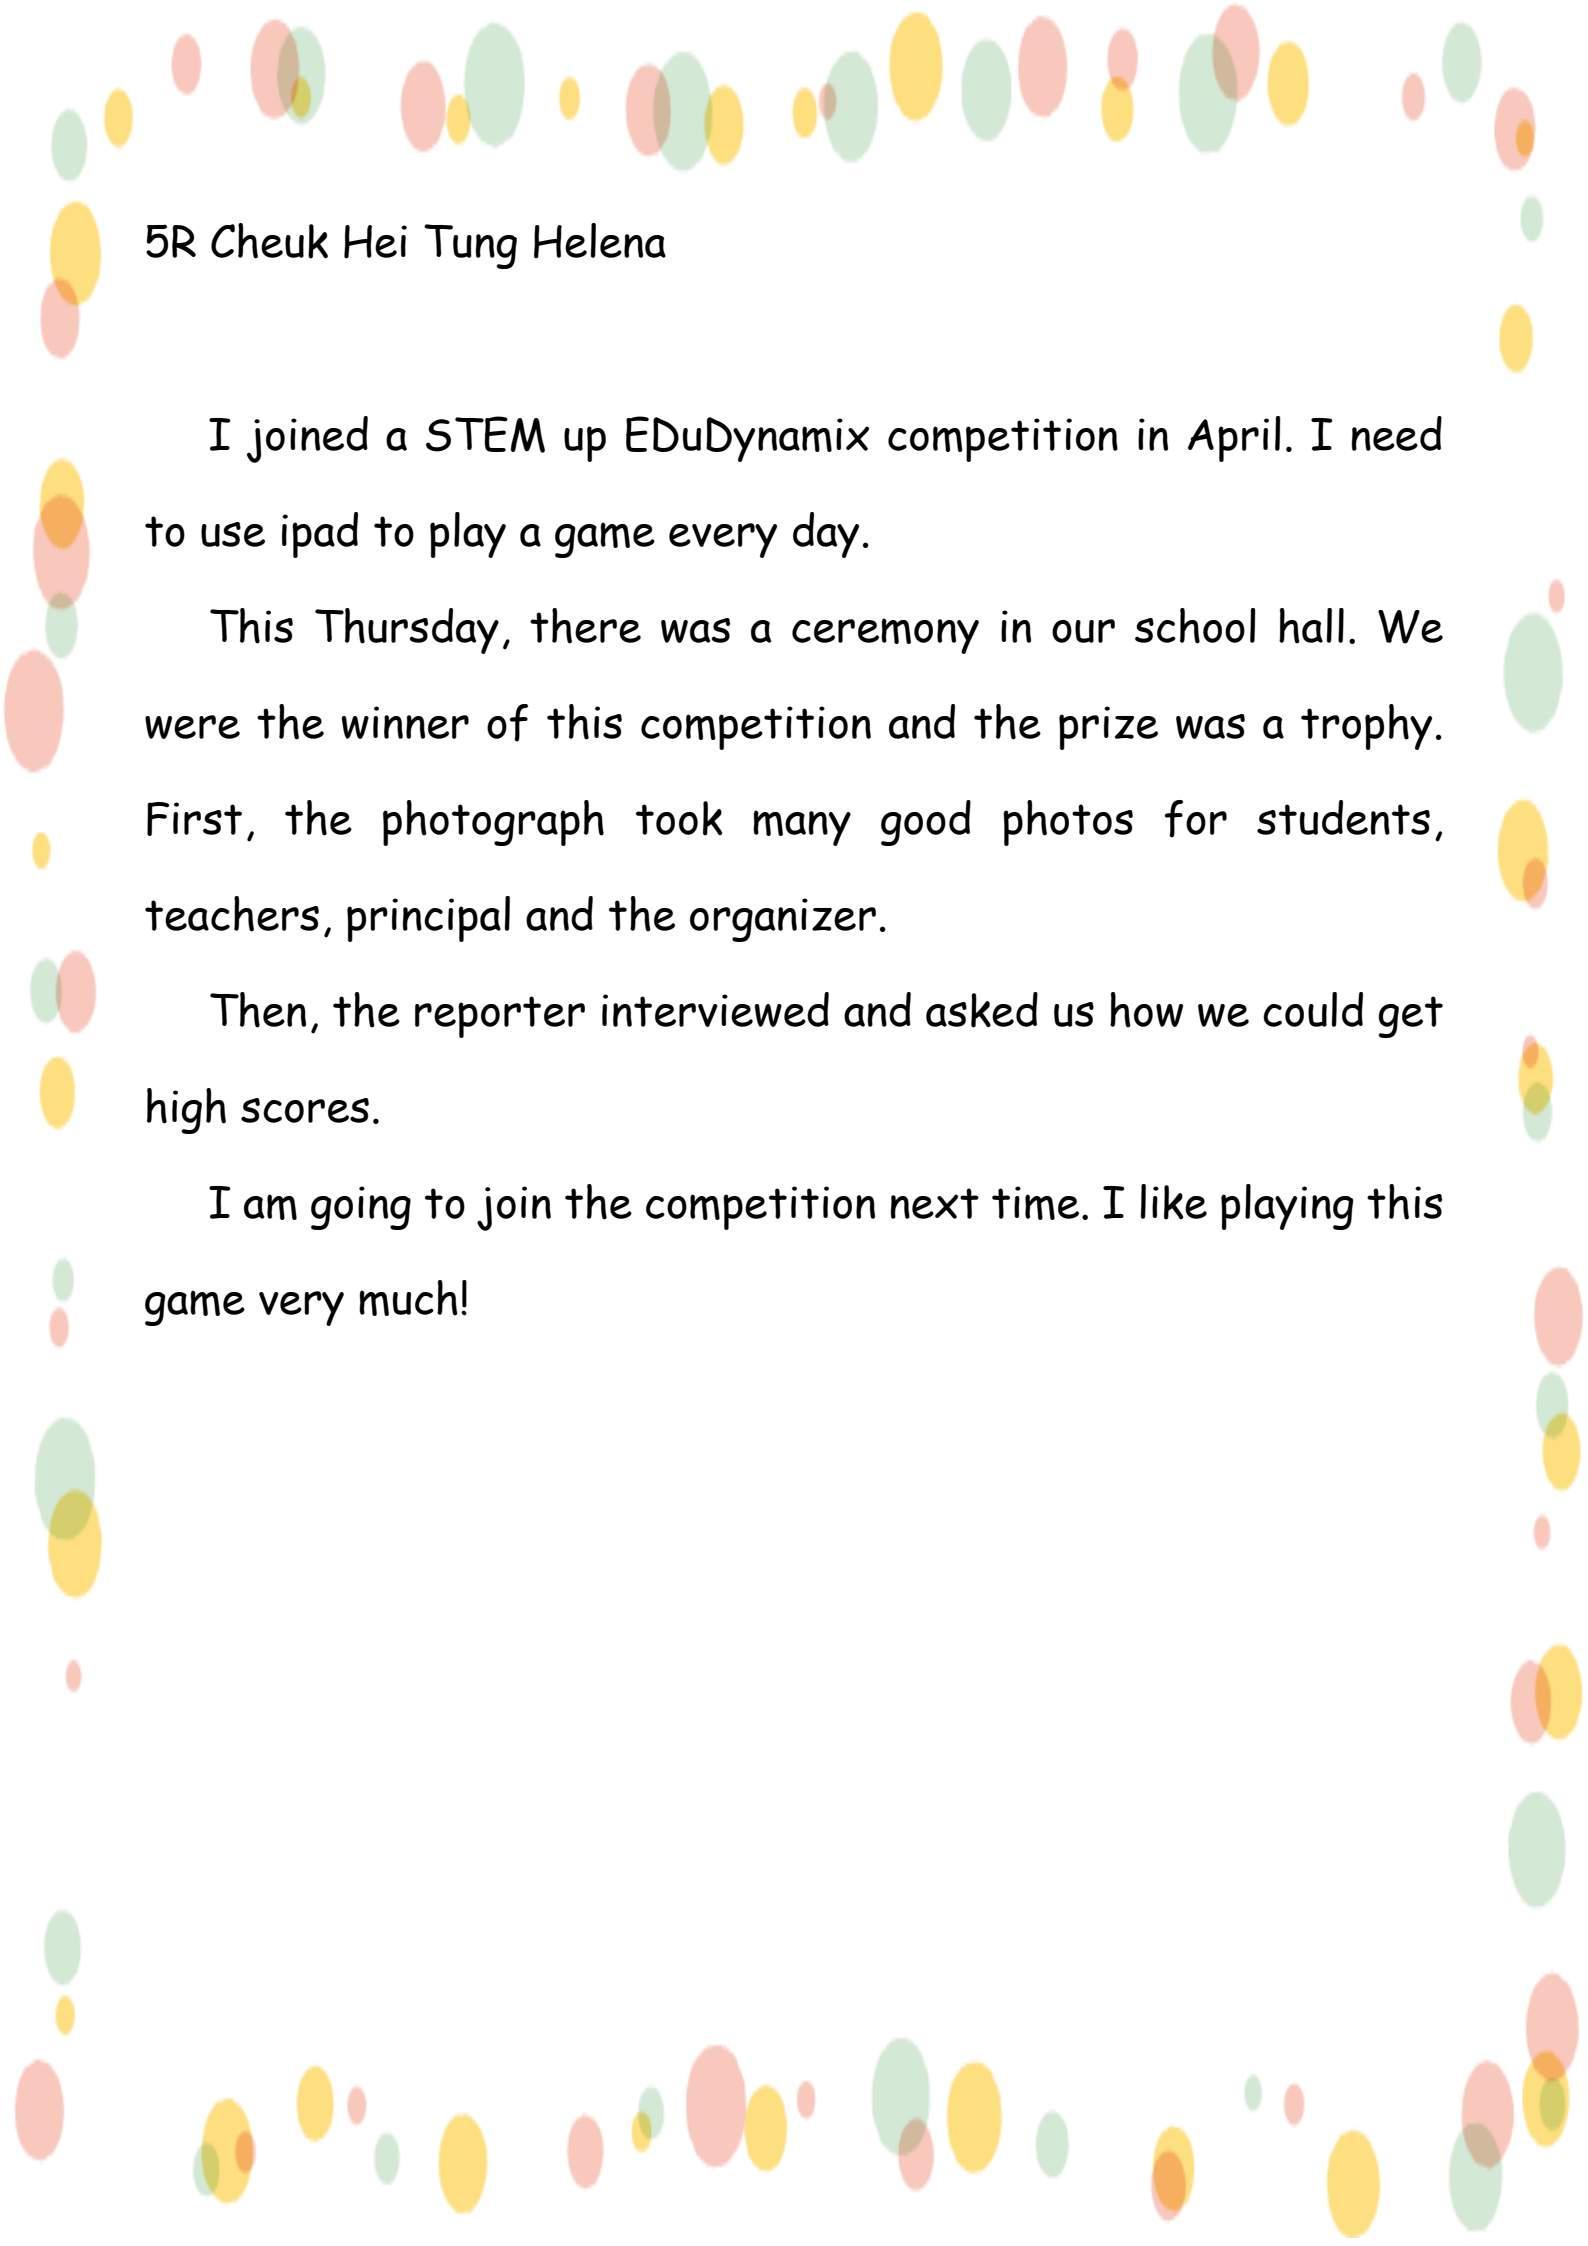

Unfortunately, they ran into the witches at the hotel. The boy was transformed into a mouse by the Grand High Witch after he accidentally discovered the witches' vicious plan about mousifying all the children in the world.

Would the witches' conspiracy succeed? Could the boy turn back into a person? If you like the story and wonder what happened next, I highly recommend you get a ticket as soon as possible.

To me, the most impressive scene was that all the witches were propelled to the ceiling during mousifying. It was really amusing and exiting. I think the CG in this movie is stunning. This movie made me reflect that it is important for us to stay positive even if we are in adversity.

Miss Ho, hope you like this film too!

I joined a STEM up EDuDynamix competition in April. I need to use ipad to play a game every day.

This Thursday, there was a ceremony in our school hall. We were the winner of this competition and the prize was a trophy. First, the photographer took many good photos for students, teachers, principal and the organizer.

Then, the reporter interviewed and asked us how we could get high scores.

I am going to join the competition next time. I like playing this game very much!

One day, when I was almost asleep, I saw something under one of my dolls. I went to see what was there and a bunny hopped out!

I was amazed when it talked to me! It told me she was from Bunny Land and she wanted me to help her. She was called Sue.

Sue took me to a secret tunnel under my bed and I didn't even know it was there. She told me we were going to Bunny Land.

After we arrived Bunny Land, I found myself with pure white fur and a short tail. I have turned into a bunny! Sue led me to her house and saw that the house had no colour. She said a witch stole her magic carrots. Without them, the houses in their village (Carrot Village) would become colourless. I knew Sue was the leader of Carrot Village and she had the most precious thing in the village. I helped her to the witch's castle and went in to find the things that had been stolen by the witch.

Do you want to read the rest of my adventure? Then wait until my next journal.

The time when I started playing OSU!

Almost a month ago, it was a usual day, I walked back home when school was over. Then, I did my homework. And started up my computer. I was tired, so I watched some YouTube, I saw a video made by a person named "Totaku". The title was "5 ways to get better at OSU!" I was curious about what an "OSU" was so I clicked on the video.

Someone started talking about clicking circles, drawing tablets, and anime music. I was always a fan of rhythmic games, so I searched OSU! On the YouTube search bar, there are about six thousand search results popped up. "Hmmm" I said, watching a few videos before eating lunch.

The next day, I downloaded OSU on my computer and tried it out. It was hard, so hard that I couldn't even clear the tutorial stage. I liked the music but not the game. I played for half an hour and quickly got bored.

The next day, I found out that my friends were playing this game too! So I talked to him and we played together. We started off with easy maps and went to normal maps, and then it got boring again. I said "I don't want to play this anymore. It's getting a bit repetitive and boring." so I watched YouTube again and watched some skilled people playing the game. I saw that they all used a drawing tablet to play. A drawing tablet is one of the things I wanted for over a year by now. A few minutes later, I stopped watching YouTube.

At night, I begged my parents to buy me a drawing tablet. They said, "If you get good grades, we will buy it." That made me a little bit impatient but it was okay.

When I got my grades, they were good but not awesome so I showed them to my dad and he said "okay I will buy you one, but don't get addicted to the game or we will take it back." They ended up getting me the "Veikk S640" which was the cheapest one out there that I could find.

A day later, it came. I was really excited unboxing the drawing tablet. I rushed out of my room to the living room of my apartment and it was there, a black drawing tablet with an USB and the pen with some extra nibs for it. I plugged it to my computer and it worked, I started at drawing some stick figures in PhotoShop and It was cool. I tried it on the game and it worked well.

The next day, I was writing this Journal and I am going to send this to the teacher soon. I hope I get good marks.

Notes: osu! Is a rhythm game and the objective was to click circles to the beat of the rhythm. Most of the community plays this game with a drawing tablet, only few players play with a mouse.
