

4R Fung Ho Chim

The start of Tetris

"Pajitnov" created Tetris, in the start, he loved math puzzles and board games, one of the few forms of entertainments available for children in the Soviet Union. His favourite was Pentominos. The rule was to fit twelve pieces of blocks a rectangular box to finish the game.

When he grew up, he became a programmer, he wants to create a computer game that to play with, they formed of three people, they stored game ideas, they helped pay for the game, and possible fell then. Pajitnov remembered back to this childhood, when he spent hours on pentominos. So, he decided to regulate the Pentominos in the computer.

Pajitnov adjusted all of the pieces in that game and he found seven kinds of blocks from it, then, he made a puzzle game, the goal was to fit all the pieces in the rectangular box, but there was a problem, when someone finished the puzzle, they have no reason to play it anymore.

So Pajitnov made the blocks falling down, but there was another problem when they made a row it stay still, then the game will end fastly, so he fixed it, when someone made a row it will disappear, so it has no ending.

In the end the sales went really good, it's all from Pajitnov, he had lived in a bad country, that is Soviet Union, and still, he even made a game in there, so we've learnt that no matter how long it takes, it's not impossible.

4R Li Yau Yin

My first wild camp

At Chinese New Year, I had my first wild camp with my family on Sharp Island.

We woke up early in the morning and had a big breakfast, after that we started our journal. First we took the MTR, then we took a minibus to Sai Kung, at last we took a boat to Sharp Island.

When we arrived at Sharp Island we started to set the tent. After that we collected some wood to make a camp fire and had lunch. After lunch we found little crabs and we played with them. We played for a very long time. I really wanted to bring them home but I knew that they belong to nature so I let them go.

And then we had an adventure of another island which is linked to our island and we can walk when the tide is out. Then we had dinner and we went to sleep. There were dogs barking loudly and it took us a long time to sleep. The next day I got up and had breakfast. I had a fantastic day at my first wild camp.