I.T. Project Day - Performance Day

It was I.T. Project Day on 23 February and it was also the day my classmates and I performed.

The whole class was very nervous. Our teachers didn't care about us winning or losing. She only wanted us to team up and have a good show. When it was time to start the competition, the first class went up to the stage. Their performance was terrific. Their voices were very clear and it was hilarious.

Then, it was our turn to perform. My classmates took turn to do the play. Some classmates helped take the tools and the others did the play. It was the time for me to do my conclusion. I ended up the play and then started to ask questions to the audiences. After our play, other classes did their own play. Honestly, it was very fascinating.

In the end, the winning class was not us. We were sad, but it felt good to perform to everyone. Indeed, it was a very good experience to us. We have learned how to cooperate with our classmates.

I.T. Project Day - Performance Day

There were many school events at my school. Within this year, I.T. Project Day was one of my favourite school events.

I.T. Project Day was held on 23rd February. Our show was a drama. I was very panicky in the beginning because it was my first time to be the main character. All of our twenty-eight classmates spent almost a half year to prepare for the show. We understand "Practice makes Perfect". Therefore, we conducted extra rehearsals in our free time voluntarily.

Finally, we did a decent show. Everyone in 5R cheered for joy because we thought that we were going to be the champion. I learned that teamwork is the key to success. In the end, we didn't win.

In fact, I understood cooperating with our classmates is far more important than winning. At least, we enjoyed performing on stage and it was an unforgettable experience.

I.T. Project Day - Performance Day

Today was I.T. Project Day. We needed to present on stage. I was so excited and worried. I hope I could do it well.

Later, when we gathered at the school hall, my legs were shaking crazily. Then the teacher announced our class will be the first to be on stage. At that moment, I felt my heartbeat pounding loudly.

Moreover, we had five students in our team. Our theme was "Filial Piety" in our Chinese culture. We did a drama to show how to honor and respect our parents. It was a successful presentation. I was so joyful.

Finally, I learned that one of the goals of the Project Day was teamwork. Supporting one another in the group to build the trust relationship with classmates is more crucial than winning the prizes. I have learned a lot from I.T. Project Day.

I.T. Project Day - Performance Day

Yesterday was the last I.T. Project Day and we needed to perform to P.5 and P.6 students. We all enjoy the processing of the rehearsals and had fun.

Five Respect's topic is "Filial Piety". Actually, my characters were mother and passerby A. However, my teacher changed and I became female neighbour. I felt a bit disappointed. Hence, my best friends Amina and Natalie comforted me. I am very glad to have them.

When I performed, I was so terrified. Luckily, Amina supported me and I didn't feel afraid anymore. We all performed very successfully. Although we didn't win the performance, we thought we were the best.

On that day, we learned if we worked hard, we must have achievement. If we didn't work hard, we had nothing. Overall, I enjoyed performing on stage. I also need to treasure my good friends, like Amina and Natalie. They are all caring and helpful.
